Father Draft Scheduled To Start Today

Congress Refuses To Stay Induction

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. (AP)—The general draft of prewar fathers is due to begin tomorrow and Congress, mindful of military leaders' advice that nothing must stop the flow of men into the ranks, showed no signs tonight of heading it off.

States Ready To Draft

From now until the end of the year draft officials intend to call in 46,000 physically fit men between the ages of 18 and 38 who heretofore have been deferred for dependency reasons. And an Associated Press survey showed that in most states some pre-Pearl Harbor fathers may expect to start paying home for service in October. Few states reported having non-fathers to meet quotas past Nov. 1.

These boards have authority to take into consideration extreme hardship cases and the importance of a man's job to the war effort. They are not supposed to draft any pre-war fathers until they have exhausted the supply of children, post-Pearl Harbor fathers, men in specified "non-deferrable" jobs and fathers who have quit working in violation of the law.

Wheeler Bill Halted

The bill of Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) to defer the drafting of fathers until Jan. 1 made no progress in the Senate today.

An effort by Senator Downey (D-Ill.) to have it laid aside, pending a congressional examination of the high command's strategy, failed when Majority Leader Barkley (D-Ky.) refused to agree to the necessary unanimous consent.

"I do not believe the strategy of our war can be worked out on the floor of the United States Senate," Barkley told Downey, who had argued that perhaps increased use of father power could make large armies necessary.

Substitutes Offered

With Wheeler's bill headed for a committee pigeon-hole or flat rejection, sponsors of two substitute proposals continued their efforts.

Senator Bailey (D-N.C.) talked to the War department officials about his bill to deny government employment to able-bodied draftable non-fathers unless they are indispensable and to curtail desk duty of army men fit for combat.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) worked for adoption of his plan to have fathers under thirty drafted before they are called.

Germany Enslaves Many Italians

AT THE SWISS-ITALIAN FRONTIER, Sept. 30. (AP)—Speaking their oaths to strip Italy of all manpower that might assist the Allies, German troops tonight conscripted all men between 18 and 33 in fifteen central Italian provinces for forced labor in Germany, according to reports reaching here.

A Chiasso dispatch to La Suisse Geneva said it was expected the conscription order would be extended to all Nazi-occupied provinces. There are estimated to be between 5,000,000 and 6,000,000 men in the age group in all Italy.

Australian Jungle Troops Closing In on Jap Finschhafen Positions

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Friday, Oct. 1. (AP)—Australian jungle troops are closing in on the last Japanese positions at Finschhafen, New Guinea, after having hurled three savage Japanese counterattacks which sought to break the encirclement.

General MacArthur's headquarters announced today that 75 Japanese were killed in sharp fighting for a strategic spur just inside the townsite. The remainder of the defending forces were scattered.

Thirty Per Cent Withholding Tax Urged in New Deal Revenue Plan

Government Insurance or Annuities Would Be Provided under Administration Program

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. (AP)—A proposal for postwar tax refunds—with the taxpayer allowed to take them in government insurance or annuities—was reported tonight to be included in a new administration revenue program calling for a thirty per cent withholding tax.

Russians Open Major Effort To Take Kiev

Make New Advances In White Russia

By JAMES M. LONDON
LONDON, Friday, Oct. 1. (AP)—Soviet troops fought to clean up the Eastern bulge of White Russia today in new advances that overwhelmed Krichiev, fifty-seven miles east of the Dnieper river crossing at Mogilev, while to the south a crescendo of guns and bombs announced the beginning of the battle for Kiev, Moscow said today.

The capture of Krichiev, bringing an order of the day from Premier Marshal Joseph Stalin, was said to have given the Russians an "important strategic point and railway junction." To take the town where railroads to Mogilev and Orsha cross, the Soviets forced the Nazi retreat.

Battle on Long Front

But it was only one move in a widespread battle on a fifty-mile front to clear the area between the Dnieper and Sogha rivers. The Soviet midnight bulletin, broadcast from Moscow and recorded by the Soviet monitor, said Red army mobile detachments were ferreting out the German encampments, taking "a considerable number of prisoners."

Much war material was captured and 2,200 Germans were declared killed in this area alone.

At Kiev Soviet forces, installed in the cross-river Eastern districts of the city, were reported to be

Nation Goes Over the Top In Bond Drive

Goal Is Reached Ahead of Time

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Sept. 30. (AP)—With two days yet to go, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., told the nation today that Americans had gone over the top in their drive to sell $15,000,000 worth of war bonds during the third war loan campaign.

Speaking at the Evansville shipyards, where he participated in the launching of a tank landing craft, Secretary Morgenthau announced in a nation-wide broadcast that at 11 a. m., (Central War Time) a total of $15,165,000 worth of bonds had been sold in the current drive.

Indiana Exceeds Quota

At the same time, Eugene C. Pulliam, chairman of the Indiana War Finance committee, announced that this state had exceeded its quota of $257,000,000.

The shipyards, described by the secretary as the largest inland shipyard in the United States if not in the world, was jammed with workers and guests as Morgenthau made the announcement and added:

"This is no longer a war of defense—if it ever was such a war—nor is it any more a war of resistance against aggressors. This war is a struggle between two ways of thought."

"The lesson we have in mind for the dictators is that our way of life, our democratic principle can and will beat theirs; has crushed them in the past; will blast them in the time; will halt them again if they ever again dare to challenge it."

Traces History of Ships

Before announcing the outcome of the war loan drive, Secretary Morgenthau traced the history of the landing ships for tanks such as being built here.

He said they came about as the result of a British plea for a tank landing craft of a certain speed and capacity, with enough endurance to cross the Atlantic under its own power and with enough flexibility to operate in shallow water under difficult beaching conditions. That plea, he said, came in 1941 while Britain still was reeling from the Nazi aerial blitz.

The story of the development of the craft, the secretary said, "shows that we of the United Nations have no Maginot line complex. We don't draw up fancy plans for defense in times of peace and then mulishly refuse to adjust our thinking to a new kind of war."

Fluid Milk Limit Is Set by WFA

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. (AP)—The War Food Administration announced today that its program designed to limit consumption of fluid milk and related milk products will go into effect in thirteen eastern and mid-western areas on Oct. 4.

The program, outlined in a WFA announcement earlier this month, will limit distribution of fluid milk, cream, cottage cheese, buttermilk and similar by-products through a system of dealer quotas based upon deliveries made in June.

The areas are: Baltimore, Washington, Roanoke, Va., Richmond, the Norfolk-Portsmouth-Newport News, Va. area; Cincinnati, Toledo, Dayton, Canton and Cleveland, Ohio; Chicago, St. Louis, and the Omaha, Neb.-Council Bluffs, Iowa, area.

Police To Question Widow Again In Shooting of Henry C. Heinz

ATLANTA, Sept. 30. (AP)—DeKalb county Police Chief J. T. Dailey said tonight that he would question further Mrs. Henry C. Heinz in an effort to obtain new clues to the baffling slaying of her banker-husband.

"We haven't any more progress in the case," Dailey said. "I'm going to talk to Mrs. Heinz in the morning and hope to obtain some information."

Coroner W. Paul Estes said an inquest was deferred for the present to give police an opportunity "to trace down the criminal."

Mrs. Heinz told Atlanta Police-men E. L. Sikes and E. O. Mullen yesterday that she was convinced a masked intruder saw grappling with her husband a few minutes

CRASH VICTIMS AFTER 26-DAY JUNGLE MARCH

WALKING OUT OF THE JUNGLE somewhere in India is a group of survivors of a mass parachute jump over the wilds of Burma. Twenty occupants of a huge Air Transport Command plane leaped for life as the craft fell to earth. Then began a dramatic twenty-six-day march to safety through thick jungle paths under the guidance of a native rescue party. On the stretcher is Sgt. Walter R. Oswald of Onondaga, Ohio.

Senators Report Army, Navy Favor United Command

Single Department Of War Suggested

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. (AP)—The Senate heard today from Senator Lodge (R-Mass.) that army and navy commanders in the field have developed a "surprising amount of sentiment" for uniting America's fighting forces under a single department of war.

Lodge, who went far enough forward in the front lines in New Georgia to see Japanese troops in action, came back to the Senate today from about 43,000 miles of flying to the far ends of the globe as one of five senators making an unique inspection trip.

Lodge Gives Summary

The tall, tanned Massachusetts senator told his colleagues:

"It is 'common knowledge' that we are exhausting our oil, that civilians in Algeria and Morocco have more American gasoline than people in the Eastern states and that Australia ought to be supplied with petroleum from the British-dominated Persian gulf area."

"He wonders whether he had been right in urging continuance of foreign operations by the office of war information in the light of some of its propaganda he had seen."

"He hopes the invasion currency being issued in Sicily, does not bear promises 'which the already overburdened American people are neither rich enough nor numerous enough to keep.'"

"There is much dissatisfaction among soldiers about the government's 'censorship and propaganda policy' which pictures our Allies as perfect."

"There is close integration of American land, sea and air forces in all theaters."

"Americans should have postwar commercial rights on landing fields which are being built all over the world."

"There is need for a definite policy of furloughing war-weary troops home."

GEN. EISENHOWER AND BADOGLIO DISCUSS ITALY'S PART IN WAR

By NOLAN NORGAARD

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 30. (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Italian Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio conferred yesterday at Malta on plans for throwing all available Italian military and naval strength into the war against Germany, an Allied headquarters statement disclosed today.

At the same time it was revealed that Badoglio, who was forced to flee from Rome when the Germans took over the country, had formed a new cabinet composed principally of military figures.

Badoglio Heads Cabinet

Announcement of the new cabinet listed the aged marshal as "head of the government."

The Allied announcement said that Italian army, air and naval forces already had been engaging actively against what it termed "the common enemy, Germany," but there was no immediate indication whether there would be a formal Italian declaration of war against the Nazis.

The importance attached to the dramatic conference between Badoglio and the Allied commander in chief in the Mediterranean aboard the British battleship Nelson in Malta harbor, was indicated by the presence of all the top-ranking members of Eisenhower's staff.

Determination of how Italy could best contribute to the war on Germany would certainly involve examination of these questions:

1. Whether the Italian fleet could function more effectively with Italian than with Allied personnel.

2. Whether Italian prisoners held by the United States and Britain could be more effectively employed as labor battalions or should be reorganized and re-equipped as combat forces.

3. Whether some parts of the warships and merchant shipping which came over to the Allies under Badoglio's orders should be turned over to the French as compensation for French vessels seized by the Axis earlier in the war.

4. Whether the Italians, if entrusted with an actual combat role against the Germans, could be depended upon to stand firm against their former Axis partners.

5. Whether the job of feeding and otherwise supplying the portions of Italy freed from the Nazis will strain Allied shipping resources needed for military purposes.

Battles Assume Importance of A Major Front

War in Balkans Helping Allies

By WILLIAM SMITH WHITE

LONDON, Sept. 30. (AP)—Yugoslav patriots by scores of thousands savagely fought German troops tonight from the middle Adriatic to North-eastern Italy, hacking at Hitler's tight-stretched Southern European lines in battles now approaching the stature of a major front.

Split, on Yugoslavia's Adriatic coast, the port of Susak, 175 miles to the north near Italian Plume, and the area of Gorizia, about twenty-five miles above Italian Trieste, were scenes of heavy action involving many Nazi divisions. Fighting also was in progress in several other less critical areas.

Many Defenders Killed

The German high command indicated the scope of the military task suddenly heaped atop its grave reverses in Russia and Italy by declaring that in current action in the Gorizia area alone "Slovenian and Communist bands" had lost more than 1,000 killed and "several thousand prisoners." Nazi troops were reported to have been ordered to take no more prisoners.

The London Daily Telegraph declared, with seeming authority, that the Yugoslav fighting "without doubt is preliminary to major events in the Balkans, which may lead to a junction of Allied and Soviet armies."

Report Heavy Fighting

In a communique broadcast by the Free Yugoslav station, heavy and indecisive fighting was reported about Split. It said patriot lines were holding strongly at Susak and that the Germans were suffering heavy casualties.

The Berlin radio told of bitter fighting in the Dolomite foothills between Venice and Trieste and said the entire area was "unsafe" for German troops. Nazi reinforcements were reported being rushed into the Dalmatian coastal sector to take some of the pressure off battered German troops who recaptured Split after fifteen days of hard fighting.

All available information indicated that the weight of twenty-five or more German divisions shortly would be taken off the Allies by this half-submerged war in the Balkans.

Berlin's Industrial Structure Badly Damaged by Bombs

LONDON, Friday, Oct. 1. (AP)—Enormous damage to Berlin's potent industrial structure is shown in aerial reconnaissance pictures made public today, revealing that at least 100 factories lie in varying stages of destruction as a result of the last three RAF raids on the Nazi capital.

These raids on Berlin, which is just as important for its industrial output as for the fact that it is an administrative and population center, were made on Aug. 23, Aug. 31 and Sept. 3.

The big concentration of bombs was notably effective in Siemensstadt, an industrial community of 250,000 people where light and heavy electrical equipment of first importance to the German war effort is manufactured. The great Siemens electrical works was partially wiped out.

RAF Bombs Ruhr Industrial City Of Bochum, Other Major Targets

By GLADWIN HILL

LONDON, Sept. 30. (AP)—The RAF concurred a month of peak Allied activity from Britain last night with a heavy attack on the Ruhr industrial city of Bochum, a nest of targets including three large steel works and coke, coal, iron and chemical works.

It was the RAF's first attack on the Ruhr in September, a month devoted to nine powerful defense-dispersing blows at targets hundreds of miles apart, ranging from Berlin to Central France and the Italian border, and a month which brought the American Eighth air force's greatest progress to date.

The month's operations made it clear that Allied air fleets are moving from "groundwork" attacks

Insurance Faces Another Threat

FOR SOME TIME the administration at Washington has been greedily eyeing the funds of the insurance companies. It is now trying to slip in an entering wedge by attempting to apply the federal anti-trust laws to the fire insurance business. Once successful there it would go after other forms of insurance. Consequently all those connected with all branches of insurance are deeply concerned and a bill has been introduced in the Senate (S. 1362) for the protection of their interests. An identical bill has been introduced in the House.

The bills provide, simply, that nothing in the Sherman or Clayton acts shall be construed to apply to the business of insurance. There is nothing unusual in them. The federal supreme court has repeatedly held, over a period of seventy-five years, that the business of insurance is not commerce and, hence, it is not subject to federal anti-trust laws. During all these years the federal supreme court has held, without exception, that insurance may be regulated by the states, and for more than ninety years it has been so regulated, each state acting to meet local conditions in the way it deems best for its citizens.

That is as it should be if anything at all is to be left of states' rights and duties against the sly but steady federal encroachment that has been under way. It is good to note that Gov. O'Connor has, in his fight for maintenance and protection of states' rights, asked the support of the Maryland delegation in Congress for this measure. He properly declares that "any new yielding of their inherent rights by the states at this time would open the breach that might well lead to further losses of rights in other directions."

As a matter of fact, the breach has already been opened and much has been lost to the states which might have been saved had there been more vigilant regard for these rights, particularly when the federal moneys were passed around as part of the centralization movement and, as legislative acts so often state, "for other purposes."

The Juke Box Itself Is Not To Blame

THE JUKE BOX is coming into notice again since His Majesty James Caesar Petrillo, potentate of the musicians' union, has graciously permitted it to give forth new sounds after holding them under stringent ban for so long a time.

Whether this is a good thing for public ears there is considerable doubt. The juke box itself is an excellent reproducing instrument but the stuff it has been allowed to send forth has been something terrible. It was probably worse before the ban than afterward.

Some think the juke box should be abolished by constitutional amendment or presidential fiat, and, as one commentator aptly says, "the torch put to all those hideously iridescent temples of swing and croon that dominate the decor of a million taverns, hamburger stands and whatnots." But, it is really not the juke box that offends the ear but the compositions which a sordidly controlled Tinpan Alley is concocting to shame the idea of popular music. Something ought to be done about that. Petrillo's malpractice is as nothing compared to that of the composers of the blatant and sickening ballads inflicted upon a suffering patriotic people while real native talent is shut out.

Meanwhile, Congress might do well to get around to a revocation of the high and mighty authority enjoyed by the Petrillos and their ilk.

A Day for Energetic Young Merchants

SINCE October 2 marks the occasion annually dedicated to the American newspaper boy, attention may well be given to the young lads who deliver the papers to your home, or who perchance sell you your daily papers elsewhere.

It would be difficult to overstate the vital services which these enterprising young men are performing. First of all, they buy their product at wholesale rates; and, just as in the case of any other merchant, they provide the sales and delivery service necessary to the conduct of their own private commercial enterprise.

In addition to their regular services to thousands of subscribers, these boys, throughout the nation, have been extremely active in various enterprises importantly aiding the war effort, such as selling War Savings stamps, promoting drives for the Red Cross and so on.

In war and peace alike, their function has truly constituted an essential occupation. But the performance of this function has been, also, an incalculably important form of self-help for the boys themselves. Educational and business leaders have been frank to declare that conducting the business of a newspaper route has been definitely beneficial to students because their minds are thus actively engaged in applying practically the sound fundamentals of their school work.

Moreover, while these boys have plenty of time for clean and wholesome recreation, they do not have time to fall into the habits of that juvenile delinquency now prevalent among so many teen-age groups throughout the country.

Considering the fact that what these boys learn in their teen-ages will have a decided influence on their adult years, they certainly merit support and encouragement. And their service to you is likely to be prompt, efficient and courteous in proportion to the considerate and courteous treatment they receive.

Two smiling, pleasant faces at each doorway — the customer and the young merchant — at collection time is one of the very best exemplifications of the American way of doing business.

So, everybody should continue to help and encourage these newspaper boys, the leaders of tomorrow, whose manifestation of principle and wisdom in guiding future generations depends vitally upon the things we teach them today.

The Same Old Solid Beacon of Security

AT THE SAME TIME that the leadership of the New Deal is cracking up on the fourth-term rock, the country is being given a demonstration of unity and forthright action by the Republican party.

This has been the outline of American politics for more than a hundred years.

The Democratic party left the nation disorganized and split into quarrelling factions after the last war, and before this war is even over factions within the New Deal are at each others' throats.

The inner "palace guard" of the New Deal cries for a fourth term because it knows that without Roosevelt its entrenched power is ended. The real Democrats largely remain silent because they know the dangers of saddling the country with four more years of New Dealism.

Republican unity and obvious leadership ability, demonstrated at the Mackinac Island meeting recently, is the same old, solid beacon of security to the voters of this nation that it has been so many times before. The emphasis is being placed upon opportunity and jobs after the war while the New Deal still plans in terms of spending and government relief lines.

There seems little doubt but that Americans will ask the Republican party to take the wheel of the wavering ship of state in 1944. It will be a victory for Americans when it happens.

Those German propagandists who are blaming Italy for so many of their woes shouldn't overlook the fact that Hitler got his dictator idea from Mussolini.

What with shooting Germans and firing salutes, the Russians hardly give their artillery a chance to cool.

If tax forms were simplified, what would there be for the tax specialists to do?

Harry the Hot-Head

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Harry has tornadoes in the brain. When things didn't go right he exploded and blew 90 miles an hour. His cut-out was always open and he was always headed for trouble. . . . In general, he was a friendly fellow with a smile and a laugh and an easy way. Broad across the shoulders, six feet three inches tall, getting a kick out of life. But when irritated he hit the ceiling. Harry no longer, but Terrible Tempered Mr. Bang.

Once, in a restaurant, he lost his temper because the waiter hovered about the table and finally presented his bill before Harry was quite ready to pay it. . . . Harry swept the dishes off the table and knocked the poor waiter half way across the room. After four battles, he spent the night in jail.

Harry always followed his impulses. Back in 1935 he was on his way to a theater with a party of four and another fellow slipped into a parking spot just as Harry was preparing to back into it. . . . He got out of his car, pulled the other fellow into the street and gave him a beating. Then he backed the other man's car into the street, but his own car in and went away from there—leaving the other car on the tracks.

Those are just samples. Every friend of Harry's could tell you other stories about him. They laughed at Harry and were afraid of him. They prophesied that the day would come when Harry would get "his," when he'd meet somebody bigger and stronger and tougher. They liked him but they hoped he'd get his comeuppance.

And then Harry met Janet—five feet two, 95 pounds, dark eyes, gentle—and for weeks he was a lamb. Never lost his temper once. Tagged around after Janet. Fell desperately in love and made her promise to marry him. . . . One week later he lost his temper as Janet and he were getting on a street car. . . . He abused the conductor for signalling for a start too soon and threatened to knock his block off and then swaggered into the car. . . . to find Janet. NO JANET anywhere! She'd walked right through the car, gotten off at the other end and gone home without a word.

And that's how it's been ever since. Whenever Harry blew up, Janet walked off. Two weeks after they were married, Janet put on her hat and went to a hotel. When he found her at last, she came home quietly without scolding him—but Harry was so meek none of his friends would have recognized him. . . . Janet keeps a suitcase packed and Harry knows it. He knows she'll walk off. He doesn't want her to do it. He wants her to stay with him forever even though she HAS cramped his style. His friends didn't think it would happen that way—but Harry has met his match at last!

Military Secrecy Is Seen Necessary In Marshall Case

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—President Roosevelt is rightly indignant about the way the reports concerning the proposed transfer of Gen. Marshall have been circulated. The inference that a demotion is in prospect, that politics has played a part in considering a choice of a successor to Gen. Marshall in handling the chief of staff's work in the event that the general goes abroad, and the implications that foreign interests have tried to remove the general from the Washington operation are all bound to be embarrassing both to the American's number one soldier and to the president.

As a matter of fact, the transfer of Gen. Marshall to command all Allied forces except the Russians in Europe would be a tribute to his ability, and the British join in that tribute. If it is a demotion for a soldier to be given a chance to command in the field the biggest army the Allies have ever put in the field and it is a greater honor to sit at a desk back home, then those who take that view just do not give due credit to the instinct of the military man.

Easy Answer

As for the politics in the selection of a chief of staff in the event that Gen. Marshall does not delegate this to his deputy, Gen. McNarney, the answer is also not difficult to ascertain. Gen. Marshall is too much interested in the success of the war effort to allow any man to be chosen to take his place who is not capable of running the home front staff organization. For Gen. Marshall would be dependent on such an organization and his whole field operation would be directly related to what was the efficiency or inefficiency of the staff left behind.

Gen. Marshall, like his colleague, Adm. King, of the navy, isn't interested in political maneuvers and would be the first to frown upon any such considerations. President Roosevelt has too much respect for his military advisers to ask them to consider political factors in the management of the war. If he had been so inclined, he had ample opportunity long before this.

Opportunities Given

Thus, last autumn when the invasion of North Africa was being planned, Mr. Roosevelt might have sought to schedule the operation a week sooner—it might have affected the congressional elections because at the time the country was in a rather discontented mood about the progress of the war. Had the president been playing politics with the war operations, he certainly would not have put the full force of the administration behind the drafting of fathers at this time. He might have been tempted to defer it and take a chance, but when his military advisers say it's necessary, Mr. Roosevelt takes their word for it.

The president has some ideas on military and naval strategy and doesn't hesitate to express them to his military chiefs, but basically the conduct of this war is the result of the planning of the combined chiefs of staff, whose technical information about logistics and training of troops and all collateral problems of supply and military action is such that no layman could possibly take the responsibility for decision without such technical advice.

Military Men Do Planning

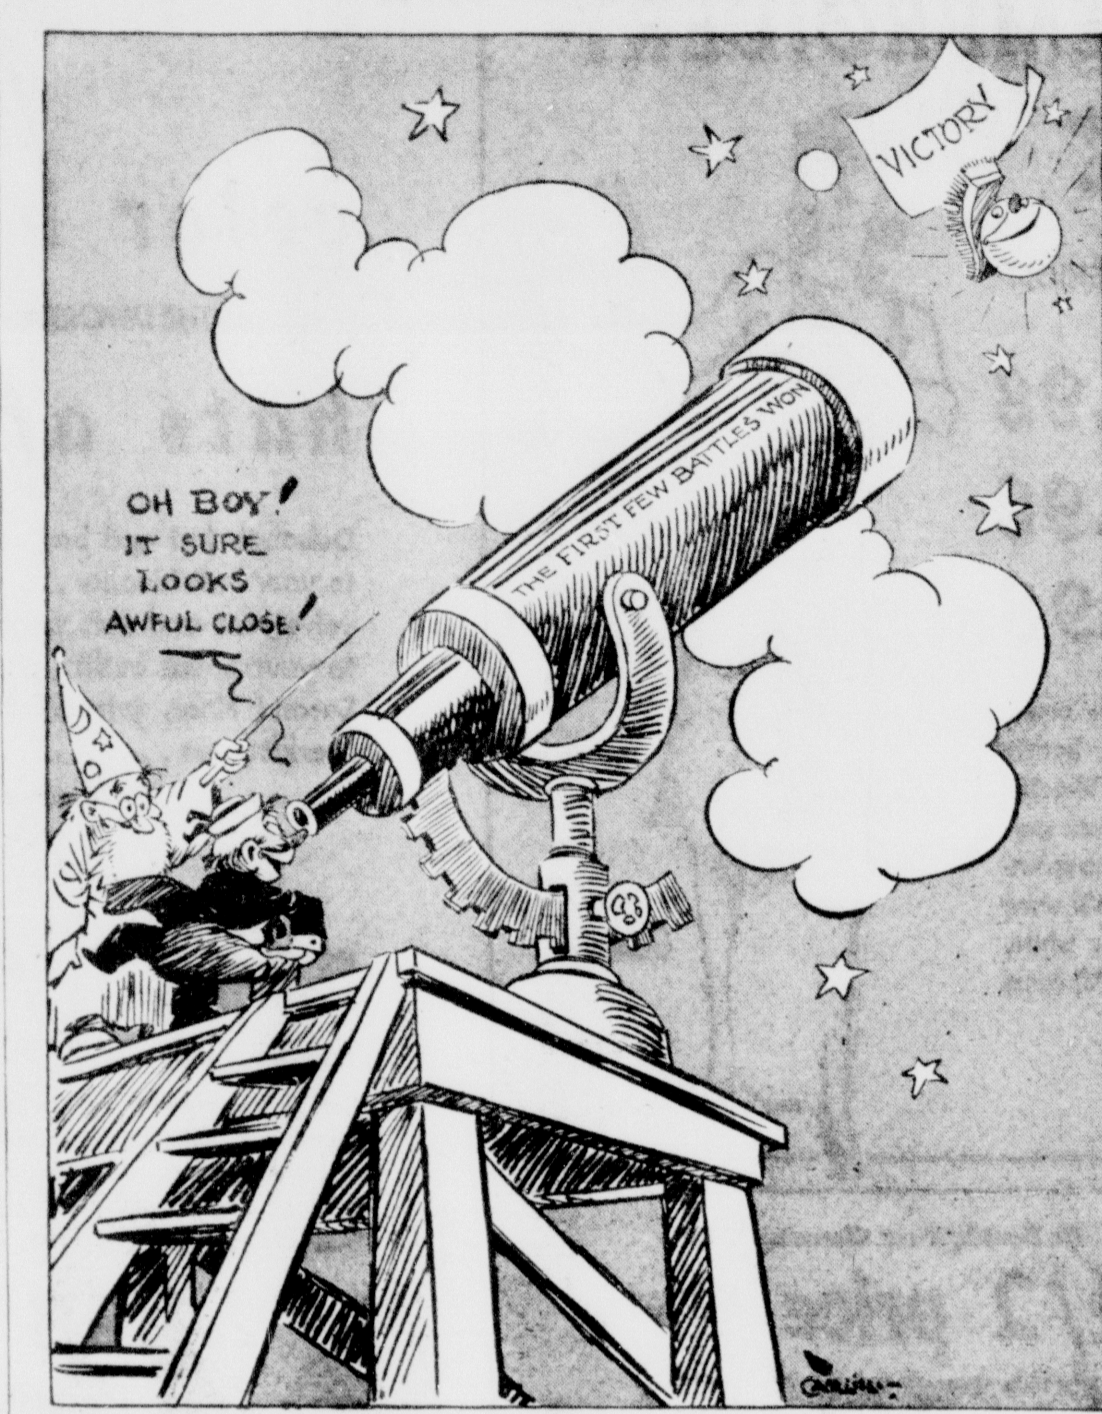

It has been assumed that Prime Minister Churchill and the president are running the strategy of this war. Possibly this impression has been created by their public addresses which reveal many previously undisclosed facts about the conduct of the war, but when the prime minister takes a course of

SO NEAR AND YET SO FAR

New Offensive on European Front Is Seen in Expected Switch of Marshall

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—On its face, the promised appointment of Gen. Marshall seems to forecast a large new offensive on the European front.

Even the White House attitude encourages this impression. The president sharply criticized the recent public controversy over the matter in the House and the press, and on the radio, on the grounds that it was a military matter. Certainly the existing military matters in Italy and in the air bombing campaign are not such as to require Marshall's transfer. Consequently, the general assumption must be that a new offensive is imminent.

Related to Invasion

One good reason for not telling officially the plan concerning General Marshall's transfer is that it is directly related to invasion plans. These are believed to be many months off, and it would not be surprising if Gen. Marshall did all the preliminary work needed in connection with the high command of the invasion and was overseas long before the public announcement is made.

That, too, is a piece of military timing which the president and the prime minister should be free to make when they please.

All Things To All People

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

The attorney general's office has gone before the tax court with a vigorous case for federal taxation of presently immune state and municipal securities. The case in question, which eventually will come before the supreme court, and which is the foundation of the administration's campaign for taxation of these issues, involves bonds of the Port of New York and Triborough Bridge Authority.

At the same time, attorneys of the same office have made a strong case against collection of personal property taxes by Lincoln county, Nebraska, on automobiles and trucks owned by the Platte Valley Public Power and Irrigation District.

It happens that the United States government owns some $41,000,000 of the bonds of this agency. As Assistant Attorney General Clark stated in his brief, these obligations are payable solely from revenues of the district derived from the operation of irrigation works and hydro-electric power systems. If the properties of the districts are subjected to taxation, Mr. Clark contended, expenses of operation would increase and affect the revenues of the districts and the security for the government's investment.

In other words, what is sauce for the goose is not necessarily sauce for the gander, in the judgment of the attorney general's office, suggesting that the law can be twisted, at least in administration, to meet any set of circumstances the administration wants to meet.

WAVES Provision Killed

The Senate Naval Affairs committee killed the provision permitting WAVES to go overseas, largely on the private recommendation of some naval officers.

The committee members made some personal investigations of the WAVES organization during their recent vacation travels, and brought back splendid reports. They found many girls with unusual education and exceptional background in that service.

However, to transport them overseas would involve complications of housing which probably would cost more than their transportation would be worth.

The idea of sending them over was supposed to have had the endorsement of Mrs. Roosevelt, but even so, some of the naval officers remained skeptical.

Ghost Was Right The First Time

From the Johnstown, Pa., Democrat

When the argument over collection of 1917-18 war debts grew hot, Calvin Coolidge settled it, so far as he and others of his view were concerned, with the rhetorical semi-question: "They hired the money, didn't they?"

Apparently there is much of the same philosophy still current. President Roosevelt, who is international-minded away beyond his Yankee predecessor's wildest moments, now disclaims the statement sent to Congress over his initials that "victory and secure peace are the only coin in which we can be repaid" for our Lend-Lease to the anti-Axis world. Mr. Roosevelt now says that one of his ghosts prepared the letter to Congress in which that sentence appeared and he never approved it. He would not have said just that, he discloses.

That is too bad, because we doubt if even the President, a phrase-maker of consummate skill, could have improved upon the statement he now repudiates. He could have elaborated, explained, justified. But he couldn't have made it say so much that is true with any greater clarity.

In his apology, Mr. Roosevelt says that, while we may not collect coin that jingles, he expects our debtors to come through with such repayment as they possibly can.

That means nothing at all. We all expect our creditors to pay, so far as they can. Our creditors expect, and probably are quite willing, to pay up as far as they can. The trouble is that for practical purposes they cannot pay in any coin that we accept with one possible exception. Some of them could pay with territory. But do we want territory? Haven't we troubles enough with the limited empire we now possess?

Probably skillful words have been spoken and written in argument about World War I debts, and now the same words will be spoken and written about World War II debts. When it's all done, we will not have been paid, and the reason will boil down to this:

Our debtors can't pay in money, because there isn't that much money. They can't pay in goods, because we can't take that much of goods without wrecking our own economy. They could pay, partially at least, in insular territory, in which we should assume the white man's burden and, ultimately, turn it free.

Mr. Roosevelt's ghost was right the first time.

Armour May Not Return as Envoy To Argentina

By CENTRAL PRESS

WASHINGTON — The chances that Norman Armour, ace career diplomat, will return to his post as United States ambassador to Argentina are fading fast.

Since Armour's return to Washington for consultation, Secretary of State Hull has made public a rebuke he administered to the Buenos Aires government in correspondence with Admiral Segundo Storni, foreign minister in the Ramirez government.

Hull told Storni that Argentina could expect no lend-lease or other form of aid from Washington as long as Argentina failed to live up to her inter-American commitments to sever diplomatic relations with the Axis.

The Argentinian statesman had suggested that the United States give increased assistance to his country—and Hull's castigation led to Storni's resignation and a near crisis in Argentina.

Then, only last Sunday, Hull addressed the nation and, referring to Latin-American nations, said the United States had friendly dealings with all but one of the Americas.

Hard at Work

Meanwhile, Armour has worked busily at the State department and not even seen reporters.

There were reports that he might be named undersecretary of state to succeed Sumner Welles, who has resigned. One possible development might be that Roosevelt might name Welles as ambassador to Argentina.

However, it is doubtful if Welles would accept the post—expert as he is in his favorite field of Latin-American affairs.

Moreover, Welles has never pulled his punches about Argentina's lack of co-operation in the war, while he has been a staunch champion of Brazil—Argentina's big rival south of the Rio Grande.

In fact, Welles reportedly once told a prominent Brazilian statesman that the United States intended to see that Brazil was the most powerful country in Latin America.

Another Year for Germany

Some British officials, thoroughly informed on the progress of the war, are predicting that Germany will not be knocked out of the global struggle until the autumn of 1944.

These officials describe as "too optimistic" forecasts that Hitler's Reich will collapse before that time.

Very determined German resistance is loomed for by many British officials, and they are not counting on a quick crack-up of German morale this time, as in the last war.

However, they concede that the Germans, once convinced that they are licked, probably will begin figuring on the best deal they can get from a surrender.

These Englishmen predict that the Prussian militarists and their political partners, the Nazis, will choose to die very hard indeed. They know the "jig is up" for them this time unless they can force a stalemate or pull some kind of fluke.

Terrific Resistance Expected

With a totally fatalistic spirit dominating, German divisions are expected to put up a terrific resistance — of which the battle for Naples is just a foretaste.

Some high British officials take this overall view of the war.

The year 1944 will be one of bloody battles on the European continent, with Allied forces fighting major offensives and suffering heavy losses.

The German Army will become more and more a trapped beast, ringed in steel, and will show the ferocity and cunning of a cornered tiger.

The war with Japan will be a long and hard sea, air and land fight and a great deal of time will be required to get the necessary shipping together and to make other preparations for the fight to death against the Nipponese on their own "home grounds."

It Can Happen In Your Home

From the Connellsville, Pa., Courier

While a Pittsburgh father and mother sat by a lamp in the living room of their home Sunday evening, engrossed in reading, a son fourteen months old played happily on the floor. Fourteen months is the age when baby creeps almost everywhere, getting into everything. The parents did not suspect any danger. But it was there, as it is in the same form in many a home.

So absorbed were father and mother in their reading they did not notice the child had become quiet. Not until it was time to put him to bed did they look about for him. Then they suffered the shock of their lives. Little Jimmy—Jimmy Maguire—was dead. Intrigued by the lamp cord he had begun playing with it. When he innocently grasped a defective spot the current killed him, instantly. He had made no outcry.

The story of little Jimmy Maguire should result in careful examination of all home wires within reach of children. What befell him can readily happen to others.

"Yellow" Air Raid Alert Causes Great Confusion in State

BALTIMORE, Sept. 30 (P)—The "yellow" air raid alert flashed to eastern warning centers early to-day resulted in widespread confusion throughout Maryland as civil-ian defense corps episonnel was mobilized at 2:15 a. m.

Signal stations mistakenly blew sirens which should have remained silent on the yellow or confidential warning and in Baltimore airraid wardens remained on the alert for seventy-two minutes.

Eastern Defense Command Head-quarters in New York reported that first fighter command headquarters issued the yellow alert when a flight of unidentified planes, later deter-mined to be friendly, were sighted. The alert sounded in New Jersey, Eastern Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, the District of Columbia and part of Virginia.

The white or all-clear signal was flashed with no intervening red or blue warnings. The all-clear sound-ed at 3:24 a. m. in Baltimore. Civil-ian defense officials said the audible all-clear never should have been sounded without previous signals.

The white signal roused thou-sands of sleeping civilians whose telephone calls jammed newspaper offices, police and fire station lines.

School Kids Kidded

DANVILLE, Va. (AP)—School children returning to John L. Berkley school on the opening day gleefully noted in front of the building a sign reading, "Condemned." Their joy was short-lived, however, since the sign related only to a cornice—for the school it was "business as usual."

Cumberland's Labor Surplus Reflected In New WMC Grouping

The War Manpower Commission announced yesterday in Washington that Cumberland has been transferred from Group Three (areas in which a slight labor surplus will remain after six months) to Group Four (areas in which a substantial labor surplus will remain after six months).

Change in classification became effective on September 1.

The WMC explained its classifications, according to adequacy of labor supply, were based on regular reports of employer requirements; estimates of anticipated military requirements, and estimates of presently available and potential labor supply.

Classifications, the WMC states, serve several purposes. They are used in planning special recruitment programs and policies by the WMC and as aids in allocating new production facilities and supply contracts.

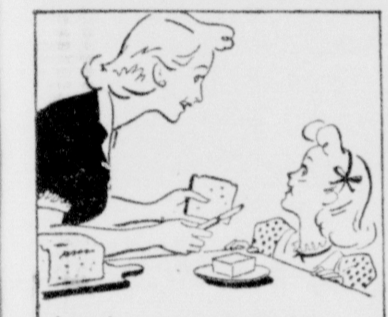

The number of labor markets in which there are acute labor shortages has arisen from fifty-nine to seventy-one, the WMC reported.

CAP OFFICIALS EXPECT LARGE CADET CLASS TO REPORT HERE TONIGHT

Reports from the local high schools and Beall high school in Frostburg indicate that about sixty or seventy junior and senior boys will comprise the second Civil Air Patrol Cadet Training class which will be organized here tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the armory, according to Lieut. T. E. Carlson, of the local CAP staff.

In addition to the new enrollees, Civil Air Patrolmen and CAP cadets of last year will also report tonight, Lieut. Carlson said. The cadets will drill and study with and under CAP personnel and be included in the regular CAP classes.

In addition to the new enrollees, Civil Air Patrolmen and CAP cadets of last year will also report tonight, Lieut. Carlson said. The cadets will drill and study with and under CAP personnel and be included in the regular CAP classes.

In order to have the meeting place equidistant from all sections, the army has been turned over to the CAP by city officials for exclusive use on Friday nights and Lieut. Carlson reminds CAP members to note the change in the meeting day.

The value of the cadet basic training course has been demonstrated by the records that have been made by former cadets now in the armed forces, Lieut. Carlson said. Aside from their drill experience and training subject, their skill in giving as well as taking orders has in many instances singled them out for recognition, he added.

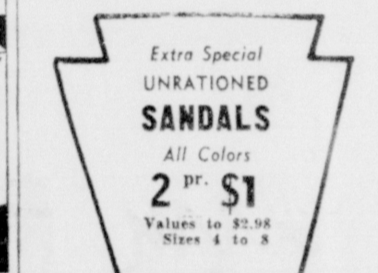

Although some non-commissioned officers from last year's cadet class are still available, he pointed out, it will be necessary to appoint new non-coms soon after the course gets under way.

Men and women interested in joining the CAP are also asked to report tonight for enrollment.

Draft of Dads In Maryland To Commence Today

But Few Are Likely To Be Called Soon

BALTIMORE, Sept. 30 (P)—Induction of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers into the armed forces will start in Maryland—as in the rest of the country—tomorrow, but state Selective Service officials declared today they were unable to estimate the number of fathers liable to induction during the first day or the first month.

Commander H. C. Bryant, assistant director of Selective Service in the state, said today that every local draft board in Maryland was authorized to send fathers for possible induction starting tomorrow, but that probably only a few of them would actually be sending any men to the fifth regiment armory in Baltimore.

Number Not Known

Commander Bryant said that it was not known how many fathers might be sent up for induction on the first day, and that while state headquarters had a fair estimate of the number which might face induction during October, the number could not be announced for reasons of military security.

He said local draft boards had been authorized to call fathers if they were unable to fill their draft quotas with single men, married men with no children and men with collateral dependents.

An inventory of all men in the state within the military service age limits was to be completed at midnight tonight, but Commander Bryant said that tabulation of the returns would not be completed until some time next week.

Survey Provides Inventory

The survey was designed to give state and national headquarters a complete inventory of the men available for possible induction and their present status.

Commander Bryant declared that each local board in the state ordinarily had only two or three calls to furnish men each month, and that therefore the number of boards which might be called upon to furnish men—and fathers—tomorrow could not be taken as a key to the numbers of fathers who might be drafted during the month.

Meanwhile officials of the United States employment service reported they were making substantial progress with the first step in a national drive to get skilled persons into essential jobs or into uniform.

Training Program Started for Wounded

The program will be expanded until the several thousand men required for these services are trained, WSA announced.

Triple Crisis For Nazis Seen In Dnieper Area

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

A triple crisis for Nazi invaders of Russia appears to be developing rapidly along the important Dnieper defense line, overshadowing in military significance the probable entry of American troops into historic Naples.

In Italy the battle might well develop into a foot-race as Anglo-American forward patrols seek to keep contact with the retreating enemy all across the Italian boot above the Naples-Foggia line. There is no present indication just where the next Nazi delaying stand will be staged and the battle rejoined.

New Drive Forming

Along the Dnieper between Gomel and the Orsha bend to the north, however, a new and very critical Russian thrust is beginning to take shape. It outmatches even the obvious Red threat to the Vitebsk gateway north of Orsha and from besieged Kiev southward to Russian-captured Kremenchug in ominous potentialities for the whole Nazi front from the Baltic to the Black Sea.

Moscow makes no mention of this newly reported Russian drive to reach the right bank of the Dnieper at Zhitobin, fifty miles north of Kiev. There is a minor rail crossing at that point for the Konotop-Gomel-Minsk line. On that sector, also just to the northwest of Gomel the west bank of the Dnieper is more vulnerable than farther south where the German-held bluffs on the right bank dominate the lower east-bank approaches over which the Russians must advance.

Would Cut Nazi Line

A Russian break-through at Zhitobin in force would virtually cut the whole Nazi line in Russia in half. The west bank rail lateral, feeding the whole north central sector of the German line, would be cut. A swing southward west of the river would segregate the Gomel enemy bridgehead east of the stream entirely.

Even more dangerous, a Russian advance southward beyond the Dnieper to the upper bank of the Pripiet would split the whole Nazi line in Russia apart. For the Pripiet drains the vast and now rain-sodden Pinsk marshes and the marshes of the Pripiet itself into the Dnieper twenty miles or so above Kiev. Those marshes at this season represent a huge morass that extends from the Dnieper all the way westward to the Western Bug in Poland.

Railway Only Link

The only north-south connection through it linking the German forces along the Dnieper is the Orsha-Zhitobin-Karosten-Kiev railway. If that should be severed above the Pripiet, the north and south wings of the German army would be cut apart in the center. The only remaining rail communication between the two wings above and below the Pripiet would be through Brest-Litovsk, 300 miles west of the Dnieper.

What that would mean to the logistics of an apparently Nazi contemplated winter stand along the Dnieper can easily be conjectured. To shift reserves from one sector to the other would require that they be marched 300 miles westward and back again to circumnavigate the Pinsk-Pripiet marshes. That makes the Zhitobin-Gomel sector of the front the most critical of the whole line for the invader. Germany's fate could be decided right there and in a matter of days or weeks at most.

"NEVER THOUGHT I'D BE REGULAR AGAIN!"

Cereal Brings Relief After Years of Dosing

Even if you have suffered for years don't lose hope. Read this happy experience!

"I'd had common constipation so bad, I knew something just had to be done. Finally, I tried KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, and I was never so happy in my life as when I found I was joining the 'regulars' again. Because that was one thing I never dreamed I'd be able to join." Mrs. Daisy Dean, Columbia, Tennessee.

"How can ALL-BRAN'S amazing results be explained—when so many other methods fail? Scientists say it's because ALL-BRAN is a rich source of cellulose elements—lack of which is a common cause of constipation. These special cellulose elements help the intestinal flora fluff up and lighten the contents of the colon for easy, natural evacuation! KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN does not 'sweep you out.' Not a purgative! It's a gentle-acting, natural 'rejuvenating' food!

If this is your trouble eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly! Drink plenty of water! See if you, too, aren't amazed at the results! Insist on genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek!

OWI War News Not Adequate, Newspaper Committee Reports

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 (AP)—The Newspaper Advisory Committee of the Office of War Information, asserting that the American public "is not being adequately informed about the war," tonight blamed "the disinclination on the part of some high naval and military authorities to evaluate what is information to which the public is entitled."

"If there is any complacency or letdown in the war effort on the part of the American people, it is not due to any lack of patriotism or desire for easy victory, but rather to the absence of full necessary understanding," the committee said in a statement issued after a day-long conference.

The group is made up of executives of a dozen newspapers, headed by Roy A. Roberts, managing editor of the Kansas City Star.

Beauty Spot Turned Into an Apron

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP)—Mars has won another victory over the following of Venus in this theater of war.

When romantic, willow-bowered Bayou Rapides threatened to interfere with the growth of the Alexandria Airbase, Army engineers went to war.

Now they are busy moving the Bayou bed one half mile south of its old location, cutting a 3,800-foot channel to drain the area and filling the old bed with the earth from the new channel.

The work will give the airport 240 acres for additional apron, runways and taxiways.

FIREPROOF SOLDIER

NOT A VISITOR from Mars, but Sgt. R. W. Szatkowski being helped into his asbestos suit by Cpl. C. M. Marchbanks at a United States bomber station in Britain. Men in these fireproof suits have been instrumental in saving the crewmen of planes that crash in flames.

The favorite food of the robin is the mulberry.

Medal 25 Years Late

BURLINGTON, N. C. (AP)—Allen R. Kelly was wounded in France twenty-five years ago while serving with the Fourteenth French division. The War department notified him the other day he would receive the Purple Heart decoration. He already had received the Croix de Guerre and a French citation.

Stocks Stage Slight Recovery; Gains Limited to Fractions

By BERNARD S. O'HARA

NEW YORK, Sept. 30 (AP)—Stocks generally operated on the recovery side of today's market although demand continued mild and price gains, on the whole, were limited to fractions.

Customers, while still very timid, began to reinstate commitments at 570.734 shares compared with 466, the opening on the idea the list may have been pretty well sold out and had undergone a fair correction of the recent upswing.

Dealing was relatively slack on the come-back but picked up at intervals after the start. Top quotations were reduced here and there at the close. Transfers totaled 570,734 shares compared with 466, the opening on the idea the list may Engineers Public Service was one of a handful of favorites to edge into new high ground for the year. In front also were Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, N. Y. Central, Southern Railway, Western Union, Pepsi-Cola, Sears Roebuck, International Harvester, Douglas Aircraft, International Nickel, Public Service of N. J., Westinghouse and General Electric.

Minor declines were posted for United Aircraft, Goodrich, American Telephone and Union Carbide.

In a mixed cure American Gas edged forward along with Brazilian Tractor, Sante Dome Oil, Venezuelan Petroleum and Lehigh Coal. Turnover here was 131,910 shares versus 126,815 the day before.

Broad gains were established in the rail section of the bond market, some issues in special demand rising 1 to 2 or more points. Developments affecting reorganization of debt readjustment plans of certain carriers stimulated trading interest in the rail group.

Secretary Morgenthau's announcement that the $15,000,000,000 goal of the third war loan drive had been achieved was pleasing news to bond circles. U. S. Governments were firmly supported by dealers' bids.

Transactions totaled $7,951,300 face value against $6,264,200 Wednesday.

NEED A LAXATIVE?

TRY THIS HEALTH DRINK FIRST

Juice of 1 lemon in glass of water first thing on arising

Has a natural laxative effect for most people, and it aids digestion, supplies needed vitamins, builds resistance, too!

Here's a surprisingly simple way to avoid the usual harsh laxatives.

Most people find that the juice of one lemon in a glass of water, taken first thing on arising, is all they need to insure prompt, normal elimination—easily. And lemon and water is good for you.

Lemons Build Health! Lemons are among the richest sources of vitamin C, which restores energy, helps you resist colds and infection. They're the only known source of vitamin P (carotene) and supply valuable amounts of B₁. They alkalize—aid digestion. Millions not troubled with constipation take lemon and water daily just as a health builder.

Why not keep regular with this refreshing morning drink that builds health too? Try it ten days, first thing on arising—see if you don't benefit!

P. S.—LEMON & SODA—Some prefer juice of 1 lemon in half glass water with 1/4 1/2 teaspoon baking soda (bicarbonate) added. Drink as foaming quarts.

RICHMOND, Va., (P)—Brig. Gen. E. E. Goodwyn is in favor of changing the name of the Virginia Protective Force to the Virginia State Guard.

It was bad enough, the commanding officer said, when he was asked if the VPF was the Virginia poultry farm. But it was even worse, he added, when the FBI "investigated" the name just to make sure of its exact meaning.

About 500,000 persons are in hospitals for mental diseases in the United States.

Water Situation Becomes Critical In Mt. Savage

Privately Owned Wells and Cisterns Are Only Adequate Supply

MT. SAVAGE, Sept. 30—For the first time in two years water consumers on the Mt. Savage Water Company lines have been completely without water for two days. For the past two weeks the water supply was adequate during the day, but would cease early in the evening.

Tuesday afternoon the water supply in the Church Hill-New Row section stopped entirely. The last water available on these lines was very muddy and not usable.

The situation has reached a critical point as the other Mt. Savage supply, formerly the UH's water line is also very low and the only adequate supply in the community is in privately owned wells and cisterns.

Officials of the Mt. Savage Water Company line stated today that when the cisterns had been inspected about three weeks ago the supply was adequate for several months. There is a possibility that the shortage may be due to damage to the water main, and an investigation will be made today.

THREE GROUPS GRADED

Once in a while a hand comes along in a duplicate game which enables you to classify the players into three distinct groups. The first includes those who think mainly of ruffing out losers in a suit contract. The second consists of those who prefer to drop the trumps and then attempt to discard their losers on a side suit. The third figures out the timing of the hand and sees that the entry situation calls for the side suit to be set up before the final round of trumps is played.

Three declarers who reached that contract played it three different ways, following the diamond Q lead. One took that with the A, led to the K, ruffed the 5, scored the spade K, lost the spade J finesse to the Q, took the club 7 return to the J with the A, lost the heart J finesse to the K, and then dropped two club tricks, being set one.

Another took the diamond Q lead with the K, took the spade K and lost the J finesse to the Q. East figured out his correct line of defensive action? He scored the spade A, won the heart

Q finesse when East held up the K, then scored the heart A and led the J, which East covered. South ruffed. The dummy lacking re-entries now to use the heart re-mainers, two clubs had to be lost, so he was set.

Where a better player was at work, he won the diamond lead with the K, at once took the heart finesse, losing to the K, and had that suit established while the dummy still held two entries. Conserving these, after East returned a club, he took in the spade A and K, then led hearts. On the A he followed suit, on the next he discarded the club 4 and on the third he discarded the club 9. West ruffed that with the spade Q, but that was the last trick his side could get, as the diamond A remained in dummy as a re-entry for the hearts to furnish a diamond discard. That declarer made an extra trick, due to soundness. An unbid small slam could have been made if South had finessed West for the spade Q, but nobody tried that as that grade of player was not in the game.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

THE FACT that one couldn't be too careful when it came to protecting a war factory had been drummed into Adam during contract negotiations in Washington.

"Don't think, North," said a man in authority, "that because yours is a small factory—a mere drop in a bucket of factories, so to speak—that there's no danger of sabotage or other devilment. A lot of things have been uncovered—little things taking place in smaller plants doing war work—but things that take on importance when practiced continually."

"I see," he had said, "but darned if I can picture little old Linville harboring saboteurs—or anyone whose going to try to interfere with my manufacturing tools."

"It's darned hard to picture a lot of things," the man had replied. "But it's better to picture them and be prepared than to ignore such possibilities and meet trouble." He had then examined a map of Linville which Adam had supplied when first discussing the possibility of his factory's getting defense contracts. "This river, here—how big a stream is it?" he had asked.

Adam told him it was little more than a creek, but pretty deep in spots. "Why do you ask?" he wanted to know. Then, laughing, he added, "Surely you don't think enemy submarines are going to sneak up a stream like that and shell Linville, do you?"

"No," said the man, "but a stream like that might be handy for other reasons. Smuggling, for instance."

"Smuggling what?"

"Explosives. Stuff that could be stored in an out-of-the-way spot until the time was right for starting real trouble."

Those words were the ones that now came back to Adam North with disturbing clarity. Mysterious car darts out of seldom used road that leads to deserted farm on bank of small river. Car has no lights. . . has no license plates. . . disappears into the night. Whose car is it? Where did it go? Of course there had been no signs of stored explosives out on the old farm, nor any signs of the place having been disturbed in any way whatever, and yet—and yet—

He rang for the foreman and two other men in authority. When they came, he talked earnestly to them about the disturbing things that had been taking place right in the factory, and about the car Jack had seen, as well as the trip he had taken that morning.

"I think the guard should be increased," he said, "and if we can spare a couple of men, they should be stationed out near the Johnson farm, just in case. Lookouts, you know—like Coast Guards."

"I get it," said the foreman. "But darned if I know who we can spare."

ONE OF THE GREATEST BLOOD-IRON TONICS YOU CAN BUY!

You girls who suffer from simple anemia or who lose so much during monthly periods that you feel tired, weak, "dragged out"—due to low blood iron—try Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound TABLETS with added iron—one of the best ways to help build up red blood to get more strength—in such cases. Follow label directions. Get today!

Maybe you'd better appoint some of the townspeople."

"I'd rather not do that," Adam said. "I think it best to keep things from the townspeople—things that might get them panicky. Besides, they might talk too much in case of excitement."

"So what?" said one of the men. "Talk spreads, and if there's any one planning mischief, he'd be scared off."

"But we don't want him scared off," Adam said. "The idea is to grab him, if possible."

"That's right," the foreman agreed. "If one of those saboteur fellows is working in this neck of the woods, you can bet he's clever enough to be watching us. Which reminds me of something else—"

"What's that?" Adam wanted to know.

"Wouldn't we be running a risk to place guards out near the Johnson place, or along the river out there?"

"We might at that," Adam said thoughtfully. "We couldn't trap any mischief makers working out there, if we deliberately sent men out to keep an eye on what's going on around the place."

"We'll have to do it another way," Adam said.

"But how?" a man asked. "Hide someone here and there along the river?"

"No. We'll have to have the place watched by someone who doesn't arouse suspicion—a sort of innocent bystander, so to speak."

"Too bad some member of that lazy Johnson family isn't still hanging around," said the foreman.

"He'd like nothing better than to sit on the river bank and fish—or lie under an apple tree—while working' as a lookout."

"Couldn't we get someone else out there—a farmer or somebody—to do that—fish or lie in the shade of a tree?" a man suggested.

"No farmer I know," said Adam. "Is going to waste time like that. They're too busy."

"But it wouldn't be wasting time," said the foreman. "I know—but farmers have too many duties. Besides, come to think of it, this is not the fishing season."

"I plumb forgot about that," said the man who had made the suggestion. "Then he could carry a gun, and pretend to be squirrel hunting or something."

Adam shook his head. "No, we'll have to think of something else. Meanwhile," he said, turning to the foreman, "you'd better increase your watchfulness around the factory. That car without a license might belong to a workman and—"

"You don't mean you think one of them is up to some devilment?" the foreman cut in.

"It might be that guy Otto," one of the men remarked.

"It might not be any of them," Adam said, "but it pays to keep on the alert. I'll try to work out some way to handle the situation out at the Johnson farm, and then—" He stopped short. "By jove, I've got it!" he exclaimed.

"A plan?" said the foreman.

"Yes—and a good one, too! Brenda Leigh—"

"Good Lord, man!" the foreman said. "A woman—"

"Why not?" Adam went on. "She's living out at the old Leigh place now—and it's not too far from the Johnson farm."

"But what can SHE do?" said one of them.

"She can do plenty," said Adam. "Brenda's clever—and she's been around. Being a newspaper woman, she's got training in how to handle a situation—and she'll do it, too. She's been wanting to help out—feel that she is doing something useful."

"You mean dress her up like a farmer's wife and have her snoop around?" the foreman said.

"She might do that," said Adam.

"But I was thinking of another way."

"I'll tell you later," Adam replied. "Get along with you now—and let me put on my thinking cap."

He watched the men start for the door, looking puzzled. "I'm seeing Miss Leigh tonight—and I'll discuss my plan with her then."

"Okay," said the foreman. "Only don't trust a woman too far."

"I won't," Adam smiled. "He went back to his work then, and kept at it until Susan telephoned him from the cafeteria that the rush was over and she was ready to meet him for luncheon."

the city, were less than a hundred yards across a narrow part of the Dnieper from the frowning cliffs of the ancient city. Here German guns answer the attack from emplacements in the ancient cells of monks.

Reds Capture Kriehv

The Soviet daily communique, recorded by the Soviet monitor, told of the capture of Kriehv and more than 170 other populated places in advances up to twelve miles while Soviet forces marched on toward Gomel and Vitebsk in the battle for White Russia.

South of Mogilev other Soviet forces which already had reached one point twelve miles from Gomel also moved up south and east. Moscow dispatches said Gomel's capture was expected hourly, but the communique merely recorded the capture of fifty inhabited localities in advances of from six to seven miles.

Gomel is the last city held by the Germans on the Eastern side of the Dnieper.

A dispatch in the Soviet army Moscow newspaper Red Star said the Germans have erected strong defenses on Gomel's approaches—a series of pillboxes and foxholes connected by trenches. Settlements have been transformed into strongholds surrounded by barbed wire, backed by artillery and mortars. But Red Star added that the Soviets had smashed thirty of these settlements and reached the Eastern bank of the Sozh river which is only a few miles east of Gomel.

The communique also told of advances in the Vitebsk direction where yesterday the Soviets captured Rudnya, forty miles east of the city. More than thirty towns and hamlets were taken in this sector.

But it was the battle of Kiev that held the most drama on the long Russian battlefield. The taking of Kiev also would mean crossing the Dnieper at the heart of that vital German defense line.

Red army guns shelled the German positions on the high cliffs from their newly won Eastern emplacements. The Russians held both railway and highway bridges on the Eastern side of the villages outside the city. The Russians also held Trukhanov Island, a sandy plain washed by the Dnieper and its arm, the Starik, in Kiev's front yard. They were just across the river and the villages they held actually were subdivisions of the city.

CIO Demands Higher Pay for Wives of Men in Service

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 (AP)—The CIO demanded today that financial aid to dependents of enlisted service men be a minimum of $120 a month for a wife with two children. The labor organization stated its position as the House Military Committee neared the end of hearings on Senate-passed legislation to boost the payments and after Charles P. Taft, director of community war services for the federal security agency, urged efforts to fix a scale of payments based on need. Need varies, Taft added, between urban and rural communities.

Fall of Naples

the north and northeast in orderly retreat. The unbroken advance of the American Fifth Army rolled beyond Mercato San Severino, twenty-two miles southeast of Naples, and approached the broad plains of Vesuvius in a move that threatened to flank the city of 925,000 and trap German rear guards.

Rome Next Objective

The Allies already were thinking about Rome, Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's second announced objective, which lies 135 rail miles north of Naples across broad plains netted with excellent highways. A military spokesman today quoted an old schoolbook saying, "all roads lead to Rome," adding that the Nazis face an almost impossible military task of supplying their troops south of the capital for a full scale battle unless they use Rome as a fortified, and not an open, city.

The extreme right flank of the Allied line across Italy rapidly was investing the Adriatic coast. The British Eighth army advanced twenty miles north of Zappone to capture Manfredonia on the gulf of that name. Some indications were that Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery might be hurling part of his forces westward to flank the Volturno river, twenty miles north of Naples, to which the main body of Marshal Albert Kesselring's army appeared to be fleeing.

Approaches Mined

The frontal and flanking approaches to Naples were mined and demolished extensively. These familiar German retreat tactics were particularly annoying to the British and American troops of the Fifth beatin gup on Naples along the narrow coastal bottleneck between Vesuvius and the sea. But already the army was well ensconced on the Naples plains and exerting ever-increasing pressure with strong armored forces.

Senators Report

Lodge reported that one outfit in the theater directed by Admiral William F. Halsey was commanded by a major general of the army, with a navy captain as chief of staff and a marine colonel as operations officer, all fliers.

"Senior officers of both the army and navy are deeply impressed with the need for unity of the services when our new military policy is framed," Lodge said. "There is a surprising amount of sentiment among these older men for a single department of war, with autonomous land, sea and air service co-ordinated at the top by a joint staff, with each branch free to pursue its own personnel and material policies," he said.

Three Others Agree
Lodge's discussion of the oil supply and postwar airport problems was similar to that yesterday by three other members of the group, Senators Russell (D-Ga.), Brewster (R-Me.) and Mead (D-NY).

While some of the latter indicated they want to discuss British commercial and diplomatic activities in a closed session of the Senate, Lodge told reporters before he spoke in the Senate he had no particular criticism of the British.

"If we are not smart enough to keep up with them, that's our fault and we ought to do something about it," he said.

Russell told a press conference yesterday that from British news reports which the senators read in Egypt, it would appear that United States troops were not doing any fighting in Sicily.

Brewster suggested that the time has come to get more oil from British holdings in the Persian gulf area instead of continuing the heavy drain on American sources.

The general feeling of the complaining senators is said to be that the British are far ahead of Americans in diplomatic and economic activity and thus stand to reap postwar benefits from many American lend-lease contributions to other countries.

RAF Bombs

evening, the fliers going after tea and returning for a late supper.

Fifth Attack on Bochum
It was the fifth attack of the war on Bochum, which lies 150 miles inland from the Dutch coast and has a population of more than 300,000. The steel works there include branches of the Krupp combine.

The attack, described by the air ministry as heavy, was the third this week as the Nazis' important industrial artery, the Dortmund-Ems canal, which brings Scandinavian iron ore in from the sea. The Northern terminus of the canal, Emden, was hit twice Monday, by daylight by American Fortresses and at night by the RAF.

Laval's Newspaper Damaged by Bomb

LONDON, Sept. 30 (AP)—The Agiers radio said tonight a bomb had exploded in the printshop of a newspaper owned by French chief of government Pierre Laval, Le Moniteur de Clermont-Ferrand, and a Swiss report said another bomb was found in his motor car twelve days ago.

Both accounts followed dispatches and reports from travelers that sabotage and opposition to German occupation forces in France were nearing a state of civil war.

"Cinderella Girl" Settles Balm Suit

PRINCESS ANNE, Md., Sept. 30 (AP)—A surprise out-of-court settlement, described as substantial, ended abruptly today the $50,000 alienation of affections suit brought against Mrs. Edna Jane Davy Muir by the wife of the Eastern Shore heiress' 35-year-old foreman. Mrs. Muir, 29, the "Cinderella Girl" who inherited at the age of 13 a 2,300-acre estate and a large fortune from a wealthy doctor who befriended her, reached a settlement with Mrs. Joseph Pope, mother of eight, just before the case was to be called for trial.

Petrillo Makes $3,000,000 Deal

NEW YORK, Sept. 30 (AP)—Decca Records, Inc., makers of phonograph discs, today signed a contract with the American Federation of Musicians (AFM), which calls for Decca to pay the union royalties on "canned music."

James C. Petrillo, president of the Musicians' Union, estimated that between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000 would flow into the union's treasury annually as a result of the deal.

the Northern Solomons. Catalina bombers which made the 2,000-mile round trip assault on Celebes island northwest of Australia found the freighter at Pomelaa, a nickel mining center.

Bombs Damage Ship

Their bombs heavily damaged the ship as well as two oil barges found there. They also attacked wharf and barracks areas in the night raid.

Another force of Australian troops pushing toward Madang, Japanese base northwest of Finschhafen, advanced to a point approximately fourteen miles northwest of Kalaipit which was captured Sept. 18 in another of General MacArthur's airborne attacks.

The advance left the troops more than sixty miles from Madang.

The communique, reporting fighting in the Finschhafen area, said our ground forces "are pressing on to the outskirts of the town from the north, west and south."

Troops threatening the little village from behind encountered a pocket just outside the town site and took a strategic point by assault in close fighting. Fifty Japs dead were counted after the engagement and the remainder fled.

Defense Council

devoted to a review of the entire civilian defense structure, a re-evaluation of the organization's mission, and to the formulation of plans and policies to meet present day conditions, Ewald said.

The meeting, which will attract officials from all sections of the state, will be highlighted by the simulated attack in which the CAP planes will drop 50,000 paper bags containing a small quantity of sand and bearing colored stickers to indicate the type of bombs they represent.

IT'S A TOAST

A toast to their wedding is in order by Red Skelton and Eleanor Powell in M-G-M's sleek musical extravaganza, "I Dood It," is currently appearing at the Maryland theater. Jimmy Dorsey and his band, Lena Horne, Hazel Scott and many other stars also appear in the film.

Dot, Dot, Dot, Dash

BRISTOL, Va. (AP)—Neighbors wondered why Mrs. I. M. Travis guarded the peculiar white insect she discovered while working at her home. Now they know. The insect has a "V" on its back—a sign of "victory."

Theaters Today

Diana Barrymore Seen in Comedy

Be it comedy or drama, Diana Barrymore is ready to tackle either when the occasion arises. The versatile actress made her professional debut in "Romeo and Juliet" and is determined to play such parts as often as practicable. Her other preference, however, is harum-scarum farce.

Diana has such a role in Universal's hilarious romantic funfilm, "Fired Wife," now at the Liberty theater. She portrays a radio broadcaster who advertises a breakfast food in saccharine baby talk and apparently loathes the job.

Robert Paige and Louise Allbritton are co-stars in the testy picture. Walter Abel is teamed with Miss Barrymore in the supporting cast. "Fired Wife" was directed by Charles Lamont.

Three Mesquiteers Opens at Garden

Opening today at the Garden theater is "Gaucho Serenade," starring the Three Mesquiteers.

The co-feature at the Garden is "Eyes of the Underworld," starring Richard Dix, Wendy Barrie, Lon Chaney and Don Porter.

Another chapter of "Don Winslow of the Coast Guard" rounds out the Garden program.

EASY ON THE EYES

THIS YOUNG LADY smiling at you so prettily is shapely Betty Duval, of Chicago. She's one of the many beauties from that city chosen by photographers as pulchritudinous pin-up material for servicemen. Don't you agree that the lensmen are right?

Red has a role tailor-made for his vigorous buffoonery. Eleanor Powell garners the most spectacular dancing assignment of her career as Constance Shaw, actress idolized by Skelton. For her unprecedented "So Long, Sarah Jane" number, a rope-spinning, tap-dancing sequence with a background of fourteen shapely "I Dood It Adorables," Eleanor mastered the most difficult routine ever attempted.

Baltimore Faces Coal Shortage

BALTIMORE, Sept. 30 (AP)—Lawrence B. Fenneman, state war-manpower director, announced today a committee of local heads of federal war agencies would demand immediate delivery of 30,000 tons of anthracite coal to relieve a threatened coal shortage in Baltimore.

He said the group, meeting with representatives of the coal industry and war production plants, decided Baltimore's coal quota must be increased by 100,000 tons over last year's. A further increase of 70,000 tons to offset existing shortages also was necessary, he reported.

The agency heads regard the in bin supplies and dealers' stocks threatened lack of coal supplies in Baltimore as an impediment to war production and a menace to community health, he explained.

Tunas provide an annual catch of about 160,000,000 pounds.

Lochner Reveals How the Nazis Stifle the Press

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
Former Chief of The Associated Press Bureau, Berlin

Hitler's advance to power in 1933 meant the death of a free press in Germany. As foreshadowed in his autobiography, "Mein Kampf," the Nazi leader regarded the complete domination of every instrumentally for public information as essential to his reign. Editors became officials of the Nazi state with no opinion of their own. The press became the unquestioning mouthpiece of the party in power. No criticism of any Nazi official or if any measure of the Nazi government was permitted in the columns of the newspaper. Every day a series of "musts" and "don'ts" and "put-it-this-ways" was issued to the German press by Joseph Goebbels, head of the propaganda ministry. Job at Stake

To disregard these secret instructions meant loss of job or worse. A few sentences of life imprisonment for editors who failed to take Hitler's determination to regiment the press seriously enough, taught those who survived that it was wise and healthy to obey implicitly. Even sports writers and music critics had to combine weltanschauung with athletic appreciation and opinion of art.

After less than a year of Nazi domination the German people read only what Hitler wanted them to know. He could now pursue his main objective, that of unleashing a world war, without fear of criticism at home or even of knowledge on the part of his subjects as to how the world regarded his various steps of aggression.

Weatherite Wins Manley Memorial; Carson Kirk Breaks Jockey Mark

A crowd estimated at 6,000 turned out at Fairgo yesterday when Cumberland day was observed and saw H. M. Fielding's Weatherite gallop home by a length in the Harry A. Manley Memorial handicap, No. 1 race of the ten-day meeting.

Coupled with M. Gilbert's Company Rest as an entry, Weatherite gave Fielding a leg on the $1,000 silver trophy, which must be won three times for permanent possession. The trophy was presented to Fielding by Mayor Thomas F. Conlan. Another trophy, offered by Cumberland Lodge No. 63, B. P. O. Elks, was presented to Fielding by George R. Lyming, exalted ruler.

Weatherite set the pace throughout the six and a half furlongs with Phantom Player second and Legation, which closed fast, third. The entry paid $5.60, $3.60 and $2.70. Phantom Player returned $5.80 and $3.90 and Legation's payoff was $3.50.

Kirk Breaks Jockey Record
The turnout was easily the largest of the current meeting and it was announced that the wagering handled was the greatest since the final day of last year's session.

Jockey Carson Kirk, who scored two victories, two seconds and a third, broke the Fairgo riding record established last season when "Buddy" Root scored 136 points. Kirk's seventeen points yesterday gives him a total of 140, thirty-eight more than Sammy Palumbo, who brought in a pair of winners yesterday.

Jockey Patsy Grant, Wheeling's leading rider this year, had no mounts due to an infected knee. Grant, who was aboard three winners Wednesday, is expected to get back in action tomorrow when the meet draws to a close.

Claude Feltnier saddled his eighth winner, Rough Going in the seventh, and remains the top trainer. Dan Chamblin took over the runnerup spot with five, Anizgoce scoring in the third.

Five favorites crossed the wire in front—White Sea in the first, Anizgoce in the third, Weatherite in the fifth, Rough Going in the seventh and Bar Ship in the eighth.

Double Pays $30.60

White Sea, co-favorite with Rom put on a rousing stretch drive to take the opener with Half Inch second by a half-length and Rom third. Half Inch led for three quarters but was overtaken on the final turn by White Sea, ridden by Palumbo.

Closing with a rush, Girlie Star edged out the favored Revery in a photo finish to win the second. Miss Upstart was third. Palumbo, who steered Girlie Star, thus was on both ends of the daily double, which paid $30.60. Revery took the lead in the early stages and held it until nosed out at the wire.

Carson Kirk registered his eighteenth victory of the meeting aboard the heavily-backed Anizgoce in the third, as the G. G. Waugh filly defeated Leo's Lorraine by half a length. Ecotia was third. Hasty Foot, 40-1 shot, ran third until the stretch.

Julette, second choice in the wagering, copped the Algonquin hotel trophy, the fourth, with Chat Hopkins second and Infinite Good third. Rhyme Maker, backed down to 4-5 in the mutuels, was fourth. Miss Elizabeth Van Meter, representing the Algonquin hotel, presented war bonds to the owner, R. S. Wise, and the trainer, N. Corbin, of the winning horse.

Card, Yank Player Losses Offset Each Other

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Sept. 30 (AP)—Some times it's better to back into an argument than to go in head first, as then you're facing in the right direction if you want to get away from there in a hurry.

Following this bit of logic we'll back into the debate as to the merits of the St. Louis Cardinals and New York Yankees by trying to figure out what they don't have, rather than what they have. Most of the comparisons are positive comparisons, based on their current lineups. This is negative, or at least not positive, by any means.

Anyway, it is based on what each team is missing from the 1942 World Series, and by trying to figure which club suffered the greatest losses you might get a line on their current relative strength. The Cardinals won last year, four games to one, and if the two teams were intact for this year's competition, you might figure the outcome would be the same, always taking into consideration the improvement or deterioration that might be shown by youthful or aging players.

300 Hitters Gone

Of those who played major roles in last year's series and who are missing this year, five are Yankees and four are Cardinals.

The Yankees lost all four of their series' 300 hitters—Phil Rizzuto, 381, Red Rolfe, 353, Joe Dimaggio, 333 and Buddy Hassett, 333—and their only winning pitcher, Red Ruffing.

The Cardinals losses primarily were in speed, as they included Jimmie Brown, Johnny Moore, Enos Slaughter and Johnny Beazley, although Beazley's was a different kind of speed. Brown was the only 300 hitter for the Red Birds last year, and he just made it.

Beazley won two of the four games. Johnny Hopp was a series regular for the Cards last year, but inasmuch as he is available and isn't playing, he can't be considered a loss.

Some of the losses you might say neutralize each other more or less. Dimaggio and Moore, the rival center fielders, for instance. On their play in last year's series there was little to choose between them, although Dimaggio's betting average was better.

Brown and either Rolfe or Rizzuto might also cancel each other, and the same might be said of Ruffing and Beazley.

Whether the loss of Hassett would offset the loss of Slaughter is open to question. Hassett, playing in only three games, had the better batting average last year, but Slaughter's arm probably won one game for the Cards, and personally if we had our choice of which man we'd want on our side in a series it would be Slaughter.

Summing up, the Yankees lost one more man and over-all better hitting. The Cardinals lost speed and daring on the bases. Each team lost its top series pitcher.

Naturally, this is all just running

Russo's Return Should Aid Yanks Against Cardinals

NEW YORK, Sept. 30 (AP)—Aside from the return of some of their stars from the army or navy the best break the New York Yankees could have received from the World Series was to have Lefty Mathus Russo regain his pitching form.

This is exactly what has happened and the Yankees now have not only the best right-handed mound corps in baseball ready for the St. Louis Cardinals, but also can count on one of the best southpaws either for starting duty or for relief.

When Russo is right he is tough to beat in any kind of competition. In both 1940 and 1941 he won four games for the Yankees and in the latter year he pitched a fourth in 2 to 1 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers in the World Series.

Last year Russo's arm became strangely lame. Most of the time he couldn't throw hard enough to pitch bean bag, but a few times the soreness let up and he appeared in nine games, winning four and losing one.

This year the Yankees hired a new trainer, Eddie Froelich, who had been a kid in the Chicago clubhouse when Joe McCarthy managed the Cubs and who later became the trainer of the Chicago Blackhawks hockey team.

Froelich made Russo his special ward and today pronounced him ripe for the series if McCarthy wants him.

"Russo's trouble," he explained, "we found out was caused by sinus. When we cleared that up the toxic condition which had settled in his pitching arm disappeared."

"There never was anything wrong with the arm itself, although it hurt. Because of this I never told him at any time this year to rest his arm. He kept working it and actually started rounding into shape in the middle of the summer. Some people have forgotten it, but he pitched a two-hitter against Cleveland in July."

Except for some plain bad baseball breaks he would have won a lot more games.

New York Jammed for Biggest Sports Weekend in Many Years

By SID FEDER
NEW YORK, Sept. 30. (AP)—Pa. Knickerbocker better let out the seams on his Sunday suit in the next day or so, because it looks now as if he's going to bust right out of his glad rags from what shapes up as the biggest sports spree in these parts in years.

As a matter of fact, it may be the fanciest sports weekend of all time in our village, what with the Belmont futurity, a Madison Square Garden fight and the World Series starting all in a space of four days beginning Saturday—and all making jumping jive at the box office. From all you hear, this lot will have the town bulging at the Battery and spinning on the merry-go-round right up to Harlem before the hangover subsides.

Hats already have the S. R. O. sign out and are hanging 'em from bookshelves, night clubs and restaurants are expecting anything and everything—and a lot of it. And even this far in advance—two days before the lid blows off—it will be practically warm your life, to say nothing of an arm or a leg, to buck the crowds along Broadway.

Two years ago, Pa. Knickerbocker went on one of these sports "benders," with Joe Louis lapping Lou Nova one night and the World Series getting under way the next day. There's no Louis-Nova coffee klatch this time, but the futurity is an added starter, and they're looking for a turnout within shouting distance of 50,000 at Belmont Saturday.

Sports operators tell you there's a lot more folding money around now for the folks to play with. So, getting a seat to the series opener next Tuesday is like getting samples from the mint. The Yankees wouldn't be surprised if there's a full house of 70,000 sitting in when the Yanks and Cardinals serve tea and crumpets. A few tickets "scalpers" who managed to snag some pasteboards, were asking $15 and up for a $5.50 pew—and were getting knocked down and trampled on in the rush of buyers. And Jackie Farrell, the Yankees' tub thumper, estimated that "if I had one buck for every late buyer who's been turned down, I'd practically have a World Series 'cut' myself."

Admission for the futurity is a war bond—$25 to the grandstand, $100 to the clubhouse, and "high bid" for boxes. Two of the boxes already have gone for $1,000,000 apiece; one drew $600,000 and five others sold for $500,000 each, and Belmont officials figure Mr. Morgenthau's bond business will pick up $25,000,000 or more.

Only 717 Fans See White Sox Down Yankees

NEW YORK, Sept. 30. (AP)—Spud Chandler, twenty-game winner for the championship Yankees twirled a hitless three-inning World Series tuneup against the Chicago White Sox, but the Sox pounded his successor, Bill Zuber, hard for an 8 to 3 victory.

A crowd of only 771 paid—believed the smallest in the history of the Yankee Stadium—saw Chandler retire the Sox in one, two, three order in the first inning. In the second Luke Webb walked with an error and Jim Webb walked with two out. Chandler then retired Mike Tresh on an outfield fly and in the third again mowed the Sox down in order, lowering his earned run average for the season to a splendid 1.67.

Zuber got by the fourth, but in the fifth yielded two runs on Webb's triple, a walk and Edgar Smith's two-bagger. After the Yanks tied it in their half on singles by Nick Etten and Bud Metheny and Tuck Stainback's triple, the Sox put together four hits with a walk for three runs. A single by Wally Moses drove in two of the tallies. The Sox bunched four more hits in the seventh for three more tallies, knocking Zuber out of the box.

Southpaw Edgar Smith went the distance for the Sox, scattering nine hits for his eleventh victory. After the fifth he held the Yanks scoreless until the ninth when the champions got their last run on a walk, Etten's single and a forceout.

Dodgers Shatter Reds' Win Streak

CINCINNATI, Sept. 30. (AP)—Billy Herman spoiled Elmer Riddle's bid for his twenty-second victory of the season today, knocking in two runs as the Brooklyn Dodgers won, 3 to 2, to end Cincinnati's ten-game winning streak.

Riddle pitched one-hit ball in the last six innings, but got off to a shaky start. He gave up two runs in the first inning on four singles, one by Herman driving Luis Olmo home with the first tally. In the third, Herman walloped a three-bagger that scored Dixie Walker with what proved to be the winning run.

From the third on, the Dodgers got only three men to first base, one on a single, one on a walk and one on a hit batsman, but Kirby Higbe stopped the Reds with men on base to chalk up his thirteenth win of the campaign.

Higbe yielded a run in the fourth on three singles with only one out, but left two runners stranded by getting Ray Mueller on a fly and striking out Riddle. In the fifth the Reds loaded the bases with one out, but got only one run on Gerald Walker's outfield fly.

The win tightened Brooklyn's hold on third place.

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPE

A Victory Garden of Herbs Indoors

It was recently stated that Vice President Wallace in his Victory garden has a corner devoted to herbs. This is indicative of the renewal of interest in herbs for flavor and fragrance and especially in the scented geraniums and mints.

A Victory garden of herbs indoors is perfectly possible for there are many fragrant-leaved geraniums with attractive flowers and foliage which can be planted in pots for indoor use.

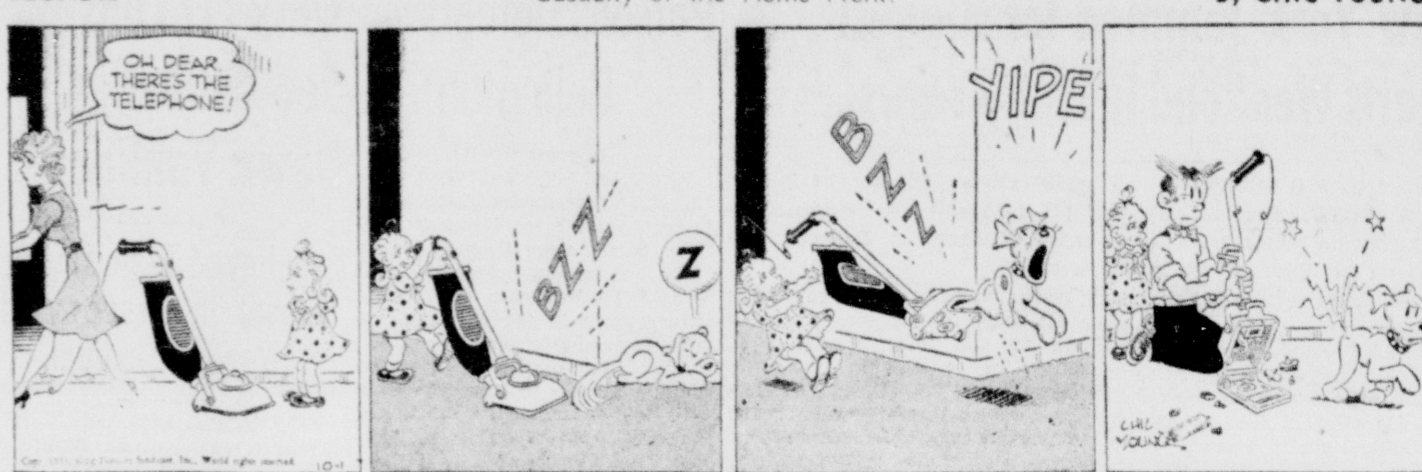

As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, the rose geranium is perhaps the most popular of the scented geraniums. A leaf laid in the bottom of a glass of apple jelly, as grandmother used to do, adds a pleasant spicy flavor. Leaves, bruised, are also used to flavor puddings, custards and jellies.

The nutmeg geranium is another favorite. Some of the other sweet-scented geraniums are the lemon-scented, mint-scented, peppermint-scented, almond-scented, strawber-

Patriotic Pageant To Mark Salvation Army Session Here

250 Delegates Will Attend Young Peoples Meetings October 23 and 24

A patriotic pageant in which those participating will wear colorful costumes and display the flags of the United Nations will be staged in conjunction with the meeting of the Maryland and Northern West Virginia Young Peoples Councils of the Salvation Army in the Allegheny high school auditorium, Saturday and Sunday, October 23 and 24. Capt. Robert S. Ball, local commander, announced last evening.

Capt. Ball said that the demonstration will be held on the evening of October 23 and will be open to the general public.

250 Delegates Coming

Business sessions of the two-day meeting, which will attract 250 representatives of twenty-one corps and eight outposts from Parkersburg, W. Va., to Salisbury, Md., will get under way on Saturday morning at 9:45 o'clock.

Religious programs will start Sunday at 10 a. m. and will be concluded with a dinner at noon in the school cafeteria. Climaxing the two-day meetings will be a rally on Sunday evening at the Salvation Army Citadel, North Mechanic street.

During the welcome session on Saturday morning a new divisional young peoples secretary will be introduced. The newcomer will be successor to Adjutant William Powell, of Baltimore, who has been appointed a Salvation Army chaplain with the United States armed services. Adjutant Powell was instrumental in making last year's meeting here a success.

Capt. Ball, who is in charge of local arrangements, said that Col. and Mrs. Edmund C. Hoffman and Brig. Richard P. Piton, all of Atlanta, Ga., will address the meetings here.

Southern Chiefs To Attend

Col. Hoffman is Southern territorial chief secretary and Brig. Piton is Southern territorial Young Peoples' secretary. These officials have charge of Salvation Army activities in fifteen states.

Capt. Ball stated that 375 persons attended the meetings at Allegheny high school last year but there will be a lesser number of delegates present at this month's sessions due to many young men being inducted into the armed services.

Cumberland was selected as the site for the 1943 sessions because of the successful event last year. In fact the 1942 conference and pageant was regarded as the best ever held by the Maryland and Northern West Virginia division.

State Guardsmen Receive Ribbons

Twenty Who Joined Company C Before Present War Are Honored

Twenty members of Company C of the Maryland State Guard, who were in the service before the United States entered the present war, were presented Prewar Defense Ribbons at ceremonies Wednesday evening in the state armory.

The ribbons of gold background with red and black stripes were sent here by Brigade headquarters of the Maryland State Guard, Baltimore.

Members of the company receiving them include:

Capt. Thomas F. Conlon, Capt. Raymond C. Bridges, Cpl. Richard T. Cook, Pfc. Melvin B. Riffley, Pfc. Charles R. Welling, Pvt. William J. O'Braden and Pvt. Alvin P. Sherlock.

Announcement was made by Company C that discharges have been given to three members who are going into the nation's armed services. They are Sgt. George Gormer, United States Marines; Pfc. Harry C. McEllan, United States Army; and Pfc. Harold A. Lloyd, United States Navy.

Overloading of Buses Has Been Reduced

R. Paul Smith, president of the Potomac Edison company, reported to the board of directors of the company at a quarterly meeting in Frederick Tuesday that the peak of overloading of buses appears to be passed with the lifting of the mileage restriction permitting some increase in service.

"The number of people traveling in many sections of our territory actually shows a decrease," Mr. Smith said, "so that with some additional mileage operated, overloading of buses has been greatly reduced."

President Smith said that for the first nine months of 1943, sale of power will show an increase of about 5.7 per cent over the same period last year, and that increased revenues has been sufficient to absorb increased expenses and taxes.

Curtains and Blinds Are Burned by Fire

Curtains and blinds on a window near a kitchen stove at the home of Mrs. Etta Price, 113 Henry street, were destroyed by fire last evening. Central firemen were called at 6 p. m. and said the curtains and blinds apparently caught fire from the stove.

West Side firemen used civilian defense pumps to extinguish a grass fire at Rose Hill and Thompson avenues yesterday morning. They were called at 11:45 a. m.

South End firemen were summoned at 7:30 p. m. to a grass fire on Lafayette avenue and East Side firemen were called at 4:25 p. m. to a grass fire on Yale street.

Mayor Sells Suit In $15,450 War Bond Auction

Adolph Hirsch Pays $2,000 for "Official Blue" at Theater Rally

Topped by Adolph Hirsch's purchase of $2,000 in series E bonds for Mayor Conlon's suit, bond sales totaling $15,450 were realized at the war bond auction held last night at the Strand theatre in conjunction with the premiere showing of "Winterm.".

With bids ranging from a twenty-five cent war stamp for Mayor Conlon's tie, which eventually brought the purchase of a $50 bond, to several $1,000 purchases for nylon hose, a radio, arm chair and diamond ring, approximately 100 gifts from individuals and merchants in the Cumberland area were auctioned off in one of the most novel bond rallies held here.

Reynold Wallach, manager of the Strand theatre, which was turned over to the War Finance Committee, and the Cumberland Mercantile Bureau for last night's final drive in the Third War Loan campaign, said that the total bond sale for premiere tickets had not been calculated but of 1,400 seats available in the theater, 1,350 were sold.

Woman Gives "Last Pair Nylons"

Among the items which brought $500 bond purchase bids were two pairs of pajamas from Frostburg, a set of silverware, a mantel clock and a Stetson hat. Mrs. Mary Brewer donated her "last pair nylons" which she was wearing and they went to a gentleman bidder for a $500 purchase. When asked why she was willing to give them up, Mrs. Brewer replied, "Any woman who has a son in the service would be glad to."

Another gentleman bidder bought $150 in bonds for a cold wave permanent wave while the first pound of butter went to a $100 bond purchaser.

The auctioneers were Mayor Conlon, Harry Williams, Ken Watkins, Paul E. Myers and Sprig Tower. Assisting them in the audience and in the lobby, where bidders were purchasing their bonds, were employees of Rosenbaum's, Woolworth's, McCrory's and Murphy's.

Patriotic Tableau Presented

Prior to the auction a patriotic tableau was presented by Red Cross nurses, WACS, WAVES, representatives of the army and the navy, American Legionnaires and members of the Forty and Eight. The American Legion color guard presented the colors at the conclusion of the rally with the playing of the National Anthem.

Members of the mercantile bureau stated last night that unanimous co-operation was given by merchants. It was the first time, they said, that not one merchant refused to contribute when solicited.

Hirsch, the highest bidder for the evening, was formerly a member of the Retail Merchants' Association here and after serving some time with the armed forces, has returned to Cumberland to resume his association with the local organization.

38 More Employed

Thirty-eight persons of this area have been appointed to positions in the Accounting Operations division of the Social Security Board in Baltimore this week, according to Mrs. Minnie L. Brunett, Baltimore, personnel representative.

Mrs. Brunett and Harvey Ecklund, also of Baltimore, will remain here next week to interview applicants.

Arden May Is Ordered To Pay $812 for Road

Garrett Commissioners Contend Road Was Built Illegally in '42

As payment for some ex-officio private roadbuilding activity by Garrett county commissioners whose terms expired last December, Arden May, of near McHenry, was ordered to contribute $812 to the Garrett county coffers after a hearing in circuit court in Oakland, Wednesday.

Suit against May was entered by the present board of commissioners who contend that a road, costing approximately $812, had been built on his farm near Deep Creek lake by order of the ex-board members after their term of office expired. No authorization had been given by the present board, the hearing revealed, and the work was not started on the road until after the election last December.

Appearing on May's behalf, ex-commissioners Blain Giesman and Cheston H. Browning contended that construction of the road had been authorized in accordance with an agreement that the right would be given to bring lime rock out over it for county use.

Testimony revealed, however, that there was nothing in the minutes of the commissioners' meetings to show that such an agreement had been made and it was pointed out that the work had not been started until after the election, in which an entirely new board was chosen, was held.

The third ex-commissioner, Paul Friend, testified that he was ignorant of the whole transaction.

The hearing was held before Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan and Associate Judges William A. Hunter and Joseph D. Misk. E. Ray Jones was attorney for the present board, comprised of Jonas Sines, John W. Herman and Walter Meyers. May was represented by Walter Dawson and A. T. Mathews.

SHRIVER URGES EARLY CHRISTMAS MAILING

Mailing of Christmas packages should begin in November, and most of this year's holiday mail should be deposited before December 10, James C. Shriver, postmaster, announced yesterday.

The number of trained employees available for distribution and delivery of mail will be seriously reduced in all post offices in the country, Shriver said, and added that the mail transportation facilities will be curtailed due to war conditions.

Parcels may be marked "Do Not Open until Christmas" this year, Shriver continued. Deliveries in larger cities will be speeded if persons use the postal unit numbering system. This will be especially true during the Christmas season when additional employees must be secured to handle the extra volume of mail.

Over 30,000 postal employees have entered the armed services, creating a serious shortage in trained personnel, so persons who want gifts to arrive on time are advised by postal authorities to shop and mail in November. Last minute gifts may be mailed not later than December 10 to assure delivery for Christmas.

National Jet Company Head Speaks On Precision Instrument Industry

Tells Kiwanians Some Parts Are Little Larger than Grain of Sand

In an effort to acquaint Cumberland businessmen with the type of precision industry heretofore confined to the New England states but now located here, John A. Cupler, president of the National Jet Company, spoke at the luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis club held yesterday in Central Y.M.C.A.

It is possible, he said, that more precision industries may locate here after the war and thus aid the local employment situation.

In making precision instruments, Cupler explained, the size of some parts is but a little larger than a grain of sand. They have an accurately sized and polished hole in them and the parts are polished throughout. One end, he explained, is tapered while both ends of the outside are rounded.

Have Inspection Service

An inspection service using special equipment developed at the local plant as well as microscopes is offered to industry at large, Cupler said, adding that customers can ship in blanks and "we will drill the holes to their specifications. We are not interested in just drilling holes, but in drilling precision holes."

Cupler pointed out that equipment made at the plant here is used in radio, the manufacture of gyroscopes, aircraft instruments, watch industry, air conditioning, medicine, television and refrigeration. Service given as well as the products are unconditionally guaranteed as to precision, quality and workmanship, he said.

The company here, Cupler said, drills holes from almost zero to forty one-thousandths of an inch. During the meeting, microscopic photographs were passed around showing the comparison between the .0062 thousandths inch drill to the .181 inch drill. The magnification, he said, was five diameters but even under the enlargement it is just barely possible to see the point on the .0062 thousandths inch drill.

Building for Market

National Jet Company photographs showing drilling machines now in the process of being built for the market also were shown at the meeting. These machines, he said, previously have been used solely by the National Jet Company and one or two licensed customers.

This machine, he explained, is the only ultra sensitive machine capable of getting maximum efficiency out of small or microscopic drills which are available in this country and elsewhere.

September Brings Drop In County Divorce Rate

According to records in the office of the clerk of circuit court here, the ratio of divorce actions to marriage licenses issued to Allegheny county residents in September was less than one to two. This ratio is far below the average established for the past several months.

Twenty-eight divorce complaints were docketed while sixty-nine permits to wed were issued to couples one of whom or both are residents of this county. The ratio for August was two divorce actions to every three wedding licenses issued.

The total number of marriage licenses issued in September is 224. During the same month of last year 326 licenses were issued while 214 were issued in August of this year.

Military Prisoner Jumps From Train at Piedmont

Police in this section yesterday were searching for an American military prisoner who jumped from a train in Piedmont, W. Va., early yesterday morning to elude his military police guard.

State police said they were notified of the escape at 2:20 a. m. and said the soldier, accused of being absent without leave, was identified as Joseph F. Momolini. He is five feet eight inches tall, weighs 160 pounds, was wearing a summer uniform and needed a haircut and shave at the time of his escape, officers said.

Col. D. John Markey Retires from Army

Col. D. John Markey, of Frederick, who commanded Camp Pickett, Va., since its opening retired from active army service at retreat yesterday concluding an army career of almost thirty-nine years.

A special ceremony was held and the troops of Col. Markey's command marched before him for a farewell review.

Col. Markey enlisted in the Maryland National Guard and in 1905 organized Company A of the old First Maryland Infantry and was elected captain and commanding officer. In 1916 after being promoted to the rank of major, he accompanied the First Maryland Infantry on service along the Mexican border.

When the First World War came along, Colonel Markey organized the 112th Machine Gun Battalion, with about half its personnel being made up of troops of the Virginia National Guard. He was its commanding officer during all its combat operations in France. For his leadership in the Meuse-Argonne offensive and other engagements he was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal.

Returning from France, Colonel Markey returned also to his first love and reorganized the First Maryland Infantry. He served as the commanding officer during the periodic maneuvers of the year between World Wars I and II. He attended the Command and General Staff School and then served for several years on the Army's General Staff in Washington.

Colonel Markey entered service in the present war as a national Guard officer and commanded the 115th Infantry Regiment during the 1941 maneuvers in the Carolinas. On March 24, 1942, he was appointed commanding officer of Camp Pickett. Under his leadership, the camp, spreading over 46,000 acres in four Southside Virginia counties, was brought into readiness in record time and formally dedicated on July 3, 1942.

Leaders in order of their introduction were: Ann Britt, Palmer Sullivan, Dorothy Cessna, Annabel Simons, Stan Zollner, Ray Lapp, Ruth Ann Scott, David Wright, Vivian Strieby, Joy Wilson, Alma Lee Thomas, Lois Hanks, Wayne Ansel, Ruth Martin, Hartley Wigfield and Kathryn Yankie.

A vocal selection, "A Birthday," by Woodman, was sung by Marilyn Markel. The band then played, "Salutation."

"Who's a Coward?" a short comedy, was enacted by Martha Lee Campbell, Bill Taylor, and Robert Tomsko, members of the Fort Hill players.

At the close of the assembly Ralph Weiner, Fort Hill's new vice-principal, was introduced to the student body by Victor D. Heisey, principal.

The program was repeated for grades 7-9 at 12:30.

Woman Topples Off Railway Span, Drowns in River

Tries To Avoid Being Hit by Train; Rescue Effort Is Futile

Topping from the Western Maryland railway bridge over the Potomac river between Cumberland and Ridgeley, W. Va., as she attempted to get out of the way of approaching freight trains, Mrs. Lucy E. Hansford Phillips, 40, 61 Blocher street, Ridgeley, was drowned at 8:10 a. m., yesterday.

John W. Diggs, 704 Louisiana avenue, conductor on one of the trains, leaped from a car into the stream fully clothed in an effort to rescue her, but the woman disappeared beneath the water before he could reach her.

Railway police said they believed the woman was walking on a boardwalk in the middle of the span when she noticed a train approaching. She stepped from the path of that train into the path of another and then stepped onto a girder before tumbling twenty feet to the river below. Officials said she could have remained safely in the center of the boardwalk as both trains passed.

Diggs told city police that Mrs. Phillips was still struggling when he jumped into the water and said he might have reached her in time except for the drag of his overalls and heavy boots.

Sgt. Raymond R. Johnson said Diggs told him "her mouth was open and I was about to reach out for her when she disappeared beneath the water. The water was so filthy I was unable to see her after she went under."

City police arrived on the scene as Western Maryland employees were removing Mrs. Phillips' body from the water, and Dr. Linnie R. Corson, deputy county medical examiner, said Lieut. James E. Van, Sgt. Johnson and Officer Edwin Lila applied artificial respiration for more than an hour in an effort to revive her.

Fell in Deep Spot

The spot where Mrs. Phillips fell is especially deep, authorities said, because of water falling on the stream bed from the dam above.

Diggs, whose mouth and eyes were burned by the acid water in the river, was taken to his home by Sgt. Johnson to change his clothing and catch his train.

Mrs. Phillips' body was identified at the Haier funeral home by her husband, Robert G. Phillips. Also surviving are her father, George H. Hansford, Ridgeley; one daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Kemmet, Cumberland; one sister, Mrs. Lola Elmyr three brothers, Walter, Earl and George Hansford, all of Cumberland.
